To heare of such thinges ye be not wont
Nam horum contraria verissima sunt

So verily as Adam created firste his God
So verily he tasted not, the fruite that was forbad
As verily as Abell, dyd kyll hys brother Kayn
So verily the thyppe made flove this is playne

As verily as Isaac, hys father dyd begette
So verily the Sodomytes remayn vnburned yet

As verily as the Isralites, the Egyptians dyd oppresse
So verily dyd Moyses gyue God the lawe doubtles

As verily as Sampson was, slayne of the lion rampynge
So verily dyd Goliad distroie Dauid the kynge

As verily as in Babilon the meates were eate of Bell
So verily the dragon of brasse deuoured Daniell

As verily as Chryste dyd crucifye the Jewes
So verily the aposteles the gospell dyd refuse

As verily as Simon Magus the Apostels dyd confute
So verily the Apostels dyd princes persecute

As verily as the deuyl hath perfecte loue and hope
So verily goddes worde doth constitute the pope

As verily as Ilesicles wythin be hote and holowe
So verily proude prelates oure master Chryste do selowe

As verily as bread doeth make and bake the baker
So verily these theses the prestes can make their maker.

If Leighton wyl neades his maker make
That these are true he can not forsake
A papiste he is and the popes owne knyght
That preacheth falshed in stead of ryght
He knowith not howe to pay hys dettes
But wyth catchynge his creditore in the popes nettes
These, a robber, by preachinge sedition
Is better regarded then the kings counsellor.
Amonge papistes.
